Umpire Murray has gotten in wrong again, and at Waterbury at that. The Waterbury papers claim that he was right in ejecting Hilt from the game but erred in his decision just before the ejection. The American says: It seems "Murray was the umpire. It seems bad to keep him in baseball when they need so many men these days to trim lawns and peddle ice. He got peevish in the first round and didn't get back during the whole game."

became angry but did not say anything during the contest, but after the game he told Murray that he was not only incompetent but was also a blot when once he gets going.

The kick came in the second when with Hilt on second and Ladd on first Phelan hit into right, Hilt scoring. Everyone was surprised when Murray called Ladd out, claiming that the ball had hit him. The ball went straight for Ladd but that youngster leaped in the air clearing the sphere. Ladd wanted to have Murray show him where the ball had struck but the ump could not be called.

Carson Hodge, at one time the ter-ror of the league batsmen, and the pride of the Papermakers' staff, has fallen on the block, his release having been handed to him yesterday. Along with him goes Pitcher Reiger. Hol-yoke carried seven pitchers, the hook having to get in its good work some where. It is probable that both men will catch on with some of the other teams. The locals could do worse than try Friend Carson out.

Those New Britain Fellows Certainly Did Knock the Sphere About.

Things, During That First Inning, Were Awful for the Orators, and They Yorks were passive victims of the ex-cellent pitching of Pfiester and other Lost the Game Then and There.

For good clean healthy welts on the horsehide, yesterday's game at Newfield Park, in which New Britain defeated the Orators, 10-7, had all other contests at this place beaten a mile. When it came to a show down for who could hit the furthest, the locals had the Cubebs beaten to a frazzle, but the latter had the greater number of singles. Mr. "Rube" Pollard, the youngster from Glastonbury, who shut New Britain out on her former appearance here, was sent in to do the slab work for the Orators, but did not last a full inning. The Perfectos collided with his slants for seven clean hits, which, with a hit batter and a base on balls, netted eight runs, just one more than enough to win the game. These runs were made, mind, you, after two men were down, but the chance to retire the side was never given. It was here again that the poor judgment of either Captain Phelan or Manager O'Rourke, which one had charge of the team we know not, was manifested, as Pollard should have been blanketed after the fourth man faced him. Romer did better, getting his man on a grounder that Hilt got to first in time. It was too late however, as eight runs had been scored, with hardly a chance to get back. The fans were given spasms when it was seen the Orators could not hit the ball, every man going out in order till the fourth. And then, maybe the locals did not turn about and lambast Mr. Wells. It was the lucky seventh. that they started real hard at getting at him, but a double play spoiled their chances. Leave it to the eight, friend, the hopes of the faithfuls that re-mained were revived when it was seen that Wells was going up. But he was relieved in time, curses on the judg-ment of Captain Waterman, and Brown substituted. Nothing could they do with Brown, but in the ninth we had two on, with no results. The Perfectos started in the opener, weeks, took a sudden freakish turn early to-day when a rush of Papke money made the Illinois "Thunderbolt" the favorite. Both men predict that the fight would not go the 45 round limit. Papke thinks he will score a knockout in less than fifteen rounds white Kelly is more modest in his Tommy Leahy got his shoulder in front of the ball, went to second on Almeida's sacrifice and came when Waterman hit into left for a single, McCabe was safe at first when, Bourquin, threw Waterman out at second. Mason was out on a relay from Stein to Miller to Hilt. Burns tion and many are optimistic regarding the outcome, yet it is the concensus of opinion that Yale will win by 3 points. Manager Lelland of Harvard admitted that Yale looked the better of the two. Lightner, whose condition has not been of the best, will start in the two mile. The Yale fans are not doubtful of the outcome and while they concede most of the sprints to the crimson team yet they are certain and Cabrera worked the squeeze play on which the latter scored, Burns go-ing out Romer to Phelan. We may enjoy a variety of creature comforts augmented by ices and cups on festive occasions.

Not so the German Kaffeeklatsch. That is a ponderous affair which you take sitting at tables. Coffee and savories mark the beginning of the meal, followed by numberless cakes which the Germans know so well how to make. This is followed by some creamy preparation or a beautiful device made in ice. This again is succeeded by the choicest fruits.

The Kaffeekanne is meanwhile still busily plying its trade. There is a well known German song which ends with the refrain, freely translated: "Thank you, thank you, hostess mine, I never drink more cups than nine."-London Queen.

The Fairy Hounds.

In some years stoats appear to be more numerous than in others, and they are seen not m ones and twos, but in dozens, hunting together in small packs. The late E. T. Booth of Brighton, when shooting in East Lothian one autumn, met a pack of stoats which attacked a terrier he had with him and would not be driven off until be and the dog between them had killed more than a dozen. Stoats will hunt together from scent and in full cry like a pack of hounds, one always keeping the line and followed closely by the others. This sight has been recorded by different observers, who have also seen weasels hunting in the same way. There is a popular notion in the west of England that hares are hunted at night by packs of little fairy hounds, locally called "dandy dogs," and these are said to be weasels, which the west country folks call "fairies," pronouncing the word "vairy" and "vair." Some of them declare that they have seen and watched the chase with awe.-London Graphic.

Queer Cases of Jilt.

A well known novelist was once filted by a girl who took exception to the inadequate punishment meted out to one of his fictitious villains. She declared that as he regarded vice with so lenient an eye he must himself be at heart a reprobate and unworthy of true love and that she must request that their acquaintance cease.

An eminent lawyer in his younger days met with a similar mishap. The lady to whom he was engaged, chancing to hear that he had delivered a most skillful though futile speech in defense of an arrant rogue, wrote, saying that she must decline to know one who could thus strive to speciously excuse crime. In return he pleaded the exigencies of the profession, but it vain. The lady was obdurate and soon afterward, by the strange irony of fate, married a man who was ultimately convicted of gross fraud, mainly through the forensic eloquence of her former lover.

Ominous.

When Julia, Mrs. Blank's maid of all work, came to her mistress and "gave notice" because she was going to be married, Mrs. Blank said:

"You know, Julia, that marriage is a pretty serious thing."

"Yesim," replied Julia, "but not gittin' married is a more serious thing sometimes, don't you think? Anyhow, it'll be as serious for him as it is for me if we don't git along all right. But then, as you say, gittin' married is about the seriousest piece of bizness a body can ingage in, an' mebbe I am a fool an' mebbe he's a bigger one. There's no tellin'. It's a turrible solemn thing, as I reckon you've found out by this time. Like enough I'll sip sorrow, but so will he. That's one comfort."-Detroit Free Press.
